Welcome
It's a great pleasure to welcome you to Adelaide's great biennial tango of the mind and soul, Writers' Week.

Writers' Week has always been one of my favourite parts of the Adelaide Bank Festival of Arts, and the 2006 event promises to be our best ever.

As this program tells us, the week will feature a stellar cast—everyone from Minelle Walters, Margaret Drabble and Vikram Seth, to Robert Drewe, Helen Garner and Nicholas Jose.

Book-lovers will have the rare chance to meet and listen to some of the world's best authors—perhaps even to question and quarrel and carouse—in the green and convivial surroundings of the Pioneer Women's Memorial Gardens.

Something magical happens at Writers' Week, with Adelaide becoming a literary "Camelot by the Torrens."

Superb food and wine, languid yet stimulating afternoons under the trees, a celebration of words and ideas that both stir and caress our imagination—the 2006 Adelaide Writers' Week has it all.

I look forward to seeing you there.

Mike Rann
Premier of South Australia
Minister for the Arts

Message
As in so many avenues of culture and society, South Australia has pioneered the way with Writers' Week. It is an event of national and international importance for writers, readers and publishers and the Literature Board of the Australia Council is proud to be associated with the event.

John Emery
Director Literature
Australia Council for the Arts

Dedication - Eric Rolls
The boldest and most original of our non-fiction writers, Eric Rolls is too various to be contained by a single classifier. Farmer poet, essayist, historian, environmental scientist, spiritual custodian and recorder of particular landscapes cultivated and wild, celebrator of food, sex, the world as it comes to us through the senses, he began as a poet with Sheaf tossers and other poems in 1967 and remained a poet, a master of close observation and of the exact and illuminating word, through the writing of two classic studies of the Australian natural world, They all ran wild: the animals and plants that plague Australia, (1969) and A million wild acres: 200 years of man and an Australian forest which was the Age Book of the Year in 1981.

As a farmer he writes of the environment with the sort of common sense that comes with a recognition of complex limitations as well as a passionate concern for what might be lost. His unique vision of Australia is summed up in a lecture title of 1985 "More a new planet than a new continent" and achieves its fullest expression in Australia: a biography, the beginnings from the cosmos to the genesis of Gondwanaland, and its rivers, forests, flora, fauna and fecundity, (2000). In the monumental Sojourners, the epic story of China's centuries-old relationship with Australia, (1992), and the companion volume, Citizens, (1996), he has given us the richest study we have of the life in our midst of people from another culture and history.

New Guinea and farmed after the war at Boggabri, then at Baradine. He is a Fellow of the Australian Academy of the Humanities and a Member of the Order of Australia. The Committee for Writers' Week is honoured to dedicate this 2006 festival to Eric Rolls for the uniqueness of his vision and for the richness of his writing over nearly half a century.

David Malouf

Three volumes constitute his Celebration of Food and Wine, (1997)—of flesh, of fish, of fowl; of grain, of grape, of Gethsemane; of fruit, of vegetables, of vulgar herbs, of sugar and spices. In Celebration of the Senses, (1984), in what may be his most daring and most personal book, he writes of his life as a husband, in both senses, as a man of the land and as a marriage partner, with wonder of what it is to be alive at every moment to the wholeness and mystery of things. Born at Grenfell in western NSW in 1923, he saw war service in
Chris Andrews

Chris Andrews was born in Newcastle in 1962. He teaches in the department of French, Italian and Spanish Studies at the University of Melbourne. He has translated three books by the Chilean writer Roberto Bolaño: By Night in Chile (2003), Distant Star (2004) and Last Evenings on Earth (2006). Distant Star won the Valle-Inclán Prize for literary translation from Spanish in 2005. Chris's poems have been published in a wide range of periodicals in Australia, the USA and Canada. His collection Cut Lunch (2002) won the Anne Elder and Wesley Michel Wright poetry prizes.

Simon Armitage

Simon Armitage was born in 1963 in West Yorkshire. Widely regarded as one of the leading poets of his generation, he is also a playwright, travel writer, song lyricist and has written extensively for radio and television. He has published nine volumes of poetry including Killing Time, and Selected Poems. His most recent collections are The Universal Home Doctor and Travelling Songs. His award-winning novels include Little Green Men, which won the Whitbread Book of the Year Award and The White Stuff.

Simon Armitage's visit is supported by the State Library of South Australia.

Olivier Barrot

Olivier Barrot was born in 1948 in Boulogne-Billancourt, in France. An author, a journalist and a performer, Olivier Barrot is widely known to the French speaking audience for his literary show Un livre un jour (One Book, one Day), which can be seen every day since 1991, on French television, as well as, around the world on France 5. Filmed in cafés (mostly in Paris), Un Livre un jour creates an atmosphere that is unique to the genre.

Olivier Barrot is also the Editor of SENSO, a monthly cultural magazine, and has produced many shows for the radio. He was the Artistic Director of the Cannes Film Festival in 2000 and his latest book on French cinema is Noir au blanc. Other books include Mon Angletarre and Je ne suis pas là (French editions).

Olivier Barrot's visit is supported by the French Embassy/L'Ambassade de France en Australie.

Anne Bartlett

Anne Bartlett grew up in rural South Australia and is married with four adult children. She has worked as editor, ghostwriter, humour columnist, biographer, feature writer, children's writer and boutique knitter. She has been writer in residence in various schools and taught creative writing at university.

Publications include Daisy Bates (1997); The Aboriginal Peoples of Australia (2002); and The Chairman (2004), the life story of Ngarrindjeri elder Garnett Wilson, former member of the National Aboriginal Conference and long-standing chair of the Aboriginal Lands Trust (SA).

Anne has published several short stories, and wrote her first adult novel Knitting as part of a PhD (Creative Writing) at the University of Adelaide. Knitting was first published in the US (2008), then Australia and will be published in the UK in March 2006.

Anne's visit is supported by the University of Adelaide.

Larissa Behrendt

Larissa Behrendt is Professor of Law and Indigenous Studies and Director of the Jumbunna Indigenous House of Learning at UTS. She graduated from UNSW Law School in 1992 and has since completed her Master of Laws and Doctorate at Harvard Law School. She is a practicing lawyer and lecturer and has worked with the United Nations. She is currently sitting on the Administrative Decisions Tribunal, the Serious Offenders Review Council, the AIATSIS Council, the ATSIC National Treaty Think Tank, the ATS Council, NSW Native Title Services and the NSW Aboriginal Justice Advisory Committee.

She is published on property law, Indigenous rights, dispute resolution and Aboriginal women's issues. She won the 2002 David Unaipon Award, the Commonwealth Writers' Prize (2005) and the Best First Book in the South East Asia and South Pacific region, for her first novel Home.

Gail Bell

Gail Bell was born in Sydney, educated in pharmacy and education at the University of Sydney, and has worked as a pharmacist, a drug educator, a chemistry teacher, a literacy tutor, and an occasional reviewer and journalist—most recently for the New York Times.

Her first book The Poison Principle won the NSW Premier's Prize for Non-Fiction in 2002. Her second book, SHOT: A Personal Response to Guns and Trauma, was released 2003 and was shortlisted for the Nita B. Kibble award.

Her most recent work is the extended essay THE WORRIED WELL: The Depression Epidemic and the Medicalisation of our Sorrows (2005).
John Berendt

John Berendt is the author of The City of Falling Angels. He was born in 1939 in New York, where he still lives. While at Harvard University, he was on the editorial board of the Harvard Lampoon. He was an associate editor and monthly columnist at Esquire and editor of New York magazine. Berendt's first book, Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil, published in 1994, sold over 5 million copies worldwide and spent a record-breaking 216 weeks on the New York Times bestseller list—and was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize.

Judith Beveridge

Judith Beveridge is one of Australia's best known poets. Her collections, The Domesticity of Giraffes, Accidental Grace, and most recently Wolf Notes have won many prizes, including the NSW and Victorian Premiers' Awards for Poetry, the Judith Wright Calanthe Award and the Mary Gilmore Award. Her poems are studied in high schools all over Australia.

Geoffrey Blainey

Geoffrey Blainey is one of Australia's most significant and popular historians. He has held chairs in economic history and then in plain history at the University of Melbourne for many years, and for some of those years he chaired the Australia Council. He has written more than thirty books, including The Tyranny of Distance, Triumph of the Nomads, A Shorter History of Australia, Black Kettle and Full Moon, and A Short History of the World.

Geoffrey Blainey's most recent book, A Short History of the 20th Century was published in 2005. He is one of the few Australians whose biography appears in Encyclopaedia Britannica.

James Bradley

Twice one of The Sydney Morning Herald's Best Young Australian Novelists, James Bradley is the author of two novels, Wrack and The Deep Field, and a book of poetry, Paper Nautilus. Wrack won the Fellowship of Australian Writers Literature Award and the Kathleen Mitchell Literary Award, and was shortlisted for the Miles Franklin Award and the Commonwealth Writers Prize for Best First Book. The Deep Field won The Age Fiction Book of the Year Award. Both novels have been published overseas and have been widely translated. His new novel, The Resurrectionist, will be launched at Writers' Week.

Vivienne Cleven

Vivienne Cleven was born in 1968 in Surat, Queensland, and grew up in western Queensland, homeland of her Aboriginal heritage. She left school at the age of thirteen to work with her father as a jilarrac building fences, mustering cattle, and working at various jobs on stations throughout Queensland and New South Wales.

In 2000, with the manuscript Blitn' Back, Vivienne Cleven entered and won the David Unaipon Award. Published the following year, Blitn' Back was shortlisted in the 2002 Counter-Mail Book of the Year Award and in the 2002 South Australian Premier's Award for Fiction. She wrote the playscript for Blitn' Back, performed by Brisbane's Kooroomba Jigarra Indigenous Theatre Company. Her Sister's Eye was published in 2002 and was chosen in the 2003 People's Choice shortlist of One Book One Brisbane. She is included in Fresh Cuttings, the first anthology of UQP Black Australian Writing, published in 2003.

Michael Cunningham

Michael Cunningham was raised in Los Angeles and now lives in New York. He is the author of three previous novels including The Hours, which won both the Pulitzer Prize and the PEN/Faulkner Award and was adapted into an Academy Award-winning film: A Home at the End of the World, also adapted for the screen; and Flesh and Blood. His work has been published in the New Yorker and Best American Short Stories 1989. His latest novel is Specimen Days.
Lidija Cvetkovic
Lidija Cvetkovic was awarded the Thomas Shapcott Prize for an unpublished poetry manuscript in 2003. Her first collection War is Not the Season for Figs was published in 2004. Her work has appeared in numerous journals and in New Music: An Anthology of Contemporary Australian Poetry (2001).

Lidija Cvetkovic was awarded first prize for her poem My Grandparents and the video poem Pain Cycle at the Sydney Poetry Festival. She works as a psychologist.

Mark Danner
Mark Danner is a writer who for twenty-five years has written on politics and foreign policy, focussing on war and conflict. Danner is Professor of Journalism at the University of California, Berkeley and Henry R. Luce Professor of Human Rights, Democracy, and Journalism at Bard College. He has covered Central America, Haiti, the Balkans, and Iraq and the Middle East, among many other stories.

Danner is the author of The Massacre at El Mozote: A Parable of the Cold War, The Road to Illegitimacy; and Torture and Truth: America, Abu Ghraib, and the War on Terror, as well as forthcoming books on the former Yugoslavia and Haiti.

Since 1990 Mark Danner has been a staff writer at The New Yorker and is a frequent contributor to New York Review of Books. Danner's work has appeared in Harpers, The New York Times, Aperture, and many other newspapers and magazines. He has co-written and helped produce two hour-long documentaries for the ABC News program Peter Jennings Reporting and his work has received, among other honors, a National Magazine Award, three Overseas Press Awards, and an Emmy. In 1999 Danner was named a MacArthur Fellow. Danner speaks and lectures widely on foreign policy and America's role in the world.

Mark Danner's visit is supported by the Australia Council.

Graeme Davison
Graeme Davison has taught at the University of Melbourne, Harvard University, where he was Visiting professor of Australian Studies, and at Monash University. He is a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences and the Academy of the Humanities and an adjunct professor in the Research School of Social Sciences at the Australian National University. His main interest is in the history of cities in Australia, Britain and the United States.

He is the author of The Rise and Fall of Marvellous Melbourne, The Unforgiving Minutes: How Australia Learned to Tell the Time and Car Wars: How The Car Won Our Hearts and Conquered our Cities and an editor of Australians 1888 and the Oxford Companion to Australian History.

He has been active as an advisor to heritage bodies, museums and in other fields of public history, where his publications include A Heritage Handbook and The Use and Abuse of Australian History. His current projects include a collaborative history of the Powerhouse Museum and a history of suburban Australia.

Marele Day
described in the previous note.

She has also written a collection of essays, Writing from the Margin and Other Essays. Shashi Deshpande lives in Bangalore with her pathologist husband.

Shashi Deshpande’s visit is supported by the Australia-India Council.

Margaret Drabble is married to the biographer Michael Holroyd and lives in London and West Somerset.

Margaret Drabble’s visit is supported by the State Library of South Australia.

Robert Drewe
Robert Drewe was born in Melbourne and grew up on the West Australian coast. His novels and short stories and his prize-winning memoir The Shark Net have been widely translated, won many national and international awards, and been adapted for film, television, radio and theatre around the world. His most recent novel Grace was published in 2004. Robert lives with his family on the far north coast of New South Wales.

Patricia Duncker

Her fourth novel, Miss Webster and Cheril, will be published in 2006. She is Professor of Creative Writing at the University of East Anglia.

Patricia Duncker’s visit is supported by The University of Adelaide.

Stephen Edgar
Stephen Edgar was born in 1951 and lives in Sydney. He is the author of five books of poetry, the most recent of which was Lost in the Foreground (2003), which won the Grace Leven Poetry Prize for 2004. In 2005 he won the inaugural Australian Book Review poetry prize. His sixth book of poetry, Other Summers, will be published in 2006.
Delia Falconer

Delia Falconer is a novelist, essayist, and short story writer, who lives in Sydney. Her first novel was shortlisted for five major Australian literary prizes, including the Miles Franklin. Her second novel, The Lost Thoughts of Soldiers, was published in 2005. Awards for fiction and non-fiction include first prizes in the James Joyce Suspended Sentence Award (2003), the Island Essay competition (1994), the HQ short story competition (1994), and the Independent Young Writer of the Year Award (1992).

Her essays and stories have been anthologised in many publications, including Best Australian Essays, Best Australian Stories, and The Penguin Century of Australian Short Stories.

Robert Fisk

The most decorated British foreign correspondent, Fisk has been based in the Middle East for the last twenty-five years, and his knowledge of the area is unparalleled. He writes daily for the Independent and is syndicated in Italy (La Repubblica), Spain (El Pais) and France (Le Monde), amongst others. Fisk is based in Beirut and has a home in Dublin. He is the author of Pity the Nation: Lebanon at War and recently, The Great War for Civilisation, a first-person account of 50 years of bloodshed and tragedy in the Middle East.

Patrick Gale

Patrick Gale was born on the Isle of Wight in 1962. He spent his infancy at Wandsworth Prison, which his father governed, then grew up in Winchester. He was educated at Winchester and Oxford and now writes full time. As well as writing and reviewing fiction, he has published a biography of Armistead Maupin, a short history of the Dorchester Hotel and chapters on Mozart’s piano and mechanical music for H.C. Robbin Landon’s The Mozart Compendium. He is the author of Kansas in August, Rough Music, A Sweet Obscurity and, recently, Friendly Fire.

Helen Garner

Since her first novel, Monkey Grip, appeared in 1977, Helen Garner has published several more works of fiction, notably The Children’s Bach, Postcards from Surfers and Cosmo Cosmolino. More recently she has become known for her wide-ranging essays and journalism, now collected as True Stories and The Peel of Steel.

In 1995 a national debate was provoked by The First Stone, her examination of a Melbourne University sexual harassment scandal. Her latest book is also non-fiction: Joe Cinque’s Consolation, an account of a 1997 murder case in Canberra. She lives in Melbourne.

Peter Goldsworthy

Born in Minlaton, South Australia, in 1951, Peter Goldsworthy divides his time equally between writing and medicine. His novels have been translated into numerous languages, as have his poetry and short fiction. He has also written for the cinema and is the author of two libretti, including the multiple Helpmann Award winning Batavia, which will have its next season at the Sydney Opera House this year.

His literary awards include the Commonwealth Poetry Prize and an Australian Bicentennial Literary Award. His most recent novel Three Dog Night was short listed for Miles Franklin Award 2004 and was the winner of the PWA Christina Stead Award for Fiction. His most recent book, The List of All Answers - Collected Short Stories, is being released to coincide with Writers’ Week. LAUNCH TUESDAY
7 MARCH, 12.30pm

Can you imagine a world without books and reading? In some Australian Indigenous communities illiteracy rates are as high as 93%.

Join David Malouf for the launch of the national 2006 Australian Readers’ Challenge. By reading ten books, help raise urgently needed funds so that Indigenous Australians can gain a basic skill that many of us take for granted.

Three Furies is a bold and visceral cabinet of the celebrated and controversial life of Francis Bacon, written by one of Australia’s most provocative dramatists, Stephen Sewell, and directed by Jim Sharman.

Angry, mad, scord, brutal and poetic, this visionary portrait has been enthusiastically acclaimed for its startling insight and inventiveness.

“Shocking, sensual and provocative.” The Australian
